A MANIAC HOLDS A POLICE STATION

Has Infernal Machine with a Big Charge of Dynamite—People Flee Building.

Los Angeles, Nov. 20.—Armed with an infernal machine containing enough dynamite to destroy a city block, a bottle of nitroglycerine and a 45-calibre revolver, a masked maniac took possession of the Central police station here yesterday, and held it more than an hour, while hundreds in the building and surrounding blocks fled to safety.

Detectives James Hosick finally slipped up behind the maniac and knocked him senseless with a blackjack. The fuse in the infernal machine was automatically ignited, but Detective Samuel Browne grabbed it, hurled it into the street, ran outside, jumped on the fuse and kicked the dynamite aside until the connection was broken.

The maniac entered the office of Chief of Police Sebastian yesterday forenoon, carrying a large box. "I've got enough dynamite to blow us all to eternity, and I want you to send for the highest official of the Southern Pacific railroad. If you don't believe me, try to take this box away from me. My hand is fastened inside, and if I pull it out—bang—we all die."

Detectives engaged the man in conversation while the street outside was roped off, 100 prisoners removed from the jail, and the two courts upstairs emptied. Patients in the City hospital

That lemon juice and a little salt will remove all stains from white ivory knife handles.

That a rusty grate may be cleaned by brushing it over with black lead that has been mixed with cold water to a soft paste. Leave it for a day or two. Then clean in the usual way.

That shoes should be fitted late in the day as feet are larger than in the morning.

That if milk has overboiled, and you suddenly find it rising above the pan, take it off the fire and blow it gently for a moment. This will prevent it from going over.

That when soot or ink falls on a carpet, sprinkle it thickly with dry salt and let it stand a while before attempting to remove it.

That tea water strained through muslin will be a capital cleanser for varnished or stained woodwork.

Care of the Hair.

Many, many women have poor hair—some short, some scant, some greasy, some dry and brittle, and many have dandruff, an alarmingly small number have a luxuriant growth of hair, thick and glossy and having a silky sheen.

When any of these defects exist, there must be a cause for it, and efforts should be made to correct the state of affairs, and to restore or give to the hair the beauty it is entitled to.

Short hair is usually caused by using curling irons too frequently or too hot. This habit is exceedingly injurious to the hair and should not be indulged in but on very rare occasions; kid and paper curlers may also have their effect on the hair, but they are not nearly as shampooed offener than once a month, likely to do it grave harm as the curling or once every six weeks; oil should be applied to the roots of the hair and

However, the hair in some cases does develop the finger tips into the oil; this not grow and is scant, even if it is applied directly to the scalp, tiffally waved, and this is due to lack of being careful to avoid getting it on the nourishment. No Fusion with Old Parties, Says Roosevelt

HE URGES HIS FOLLOWERS

To Avoid Any Combination—No Deals to Be Made for Personal Advantage—Progressives to Move Independently for Legislation.

New York, Nov. 20.—Theodore Roosevelt and Oscar Straus addressed a general conference of Progressive state leaders in session in New York yesterday. The conference was to decide the question of fusion in elections hereafter, with particular reference to suggested fusion with anti-Tammany forces in New York.

It was Colonel Roosevelt's first appearance since the election, he said: "There have been times, when it was expressed that we were merely a bolting faction of one of the old parties and would attempt to fuse again with that party. We will not. In this party organization of ours, ex-Democrats and ex-Republicans stand alike. Both of the old parties represented the same privilege, and both of them stand on the vital issues of the day, shoulder to shoulder, side by side, and it is our business to show the people. We will have the able assistance of the bosses of both the old parties in making it pay. It is our business to show the people that they are simply deluded when they are privileged to vote under either of the old parties. It does not make any real difference which they vote for, as long as they continue in either of the parties, they are casting their votes against their own interests and for the perpetuation of the combination between privilege in politics and privilege in business."

Continuing, Colonel Roosevelt declared that he was in the ranks as a man and not as a leader. He said that he hoped that in no legislative assembly in which the Progressives had representation would there be any submission to either of the old parties if they desired to combine the men of the Progressive party with their party organization. "I hope we will make it plain to the people," he said, "that it is up to the old parties to combine against us; and our representatives in the state legislatures and in Congress are not going to enter into any deal of any degree for personal advantage with either of the old parties. Let them do that work. I further earnestly hope that in this state, in all other states, in Congress, the men elected state senators, assemblymen, will, at the earliest possible date, introduce bills embodying the principles in our Progressive platform as they are enacted into laws."

THE ST. LAWRENCE BASIN.

Important Measurements by United States Government.

An important book, recently published by the United States geological survey as water supply paper 304, contains results of stream-flow measurements made in the St. Lawrence river basin during the year 1911. The report includes measurements on rivers emptying into the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence river from the United States, from the small streams tributary to Lake Superior in Minnesota, such as Brule river, Devil track river, Cascade, and Poplar rivers, eastward to certain streams emptying into the St. Lawrence by way of Lake Champlain and the Richelieu in New York and Vermont.

The St. Lawrence river system is international, and new questions arise almost every day with respect to the proper division of authority over and the use of this great source of water supply. The division of water for power utilization at Niagara has recently attracted the attention of both countries, and another question quite as important now is that of the propriety of permitting the city of Chicago to divert larger volumes of water from Lake Michigan through its drainage canal into Illinois river. By reason of the prospective decrease in the depth of navigable waterways, especially those between Lakes Michigan and Huron and between Lakes Huron and Erie, protests have been made by the Canadian authorities.

The two questions mentioned illustrate the importance of determining thoroughly the amount of water supplied to the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence system by the tributaries within the United States because international questions may at any time arise in which data of this kind may be of the utmost importance.

Water-Supply Paper No. 304 is the latest of a series of similar volumes covering measurements on the principal streams of the St. Lawrence basin. A copy of this report may be obtained, as application to the director of the U. S. geological survey, Washington, D. C.
